I am running to represent Hawaii's First Congressional District in the U.S. House of Representatives. Our country and state face many serious challenges. The President needs reasonable advice and solid support in winning the war on terror. Our Congress functions best with vigorous but sensible debate that results in what's best for our country regardless of party or politics. Our state would be well served with voices in Washington that speak for all of us. And that is why I undertake this mission.

My years of experience dealing with decision makers and business leaders from around the world form a real- life base of knowledge. My local roots keep me grounded and in touch with issues important to hard-working families. I will provide Hawaii with a balanced voice that would help our relationship with the President and both houses of Congress. I will work closely with Governor Linda Lingle and our entire Congressional delegation in making decisions that are best for the people. That I promise.

Despite global and close-to-home problems, I am optimistic about our future. Our country and state remain shining lights of hope for those who face struggles elsewhere. With your support and vote, I will provide a voice in Congress that will speak well for Hawaii.
